Introduction: Kurt Waldhuetter, Regional Director, Wisconsin Entrepreneurs' Network

Description: Stealth Therapeutics, Inc. will obtain registration and market novel patented port products. The company's products minimize scarring and discomfort for patients, especially those requiring months of near-daily intravenous drug administration for cancer treatment. The ports are also easier for physicians to implant and more cost-effective for health care providers. Stealth Therapeutics, which received seed financing from Kegonsa Partners, was founded by Bradley Glenn and is led by CEO Peter Drumm.
